PREFACE

The aim of this book is to preserve a record of the Lybarger family from the time of its coming to America, more than two hundred years ago, down to the present day.

Many years ago I became interested in the origin of our forefathers and started to gather facts concerning them. In 1921, when a student in law school with the help of my father I published the first edition of the family history. No sooner had the book appeared than I began learning of many Lybargers of whom I had not heard before. Throughout the years I have been gathering additional data, much of it from sources which were not formerly available. The time has come, therefore, for another effort in the interest of accuracy.

We may well be proud of the record made by our forefathers in America. They were sturdy men, lovers of liberty, who, discontented with the tyranny then existing in the homeland, set out ready and willing to risk their all in quest of opportunities which they might find or make for themselves in the wilderness of the New World. Arriving in America they heartily shook off the old allegiance and assumed the benefits and duties of subjects in the land of their adoption. They cut their way westward to the frontier of the colonies, and there helped establish new counties, transforming the virgin forests into fertile farmlands. When the time came for America to assume her independence our forefathers responded to the call and served in the armed forces of their country.

Likewise the sons of the early Lybargers were pioneers. Taking up the westward trail where their fathers had stopped, they pushed across the Alleghenies and settled throughout Ohio and the middle west. Likewise, too, did these sons in the generations following come to the aid of their country in times of need, for their names are found on the muster rolls of every war from the Revolution to the Korean conflict.

So in the arts of war and peace the Lybarger family has played its part in the building of the Republic. At first but few in numbers, the family has grown with the passing of time, so that today its members are found throughout the United States. It is represented in almost every profession and walk of life. The following pages will reveal that many other families are closely related to the Lybargers either by inter-marriage or descent. We may feel, therefore, that ours is a typical American family, and that its record is worthy of being preserved for the future.

PREFACE

A word of explanation may serve to make clear the method which I have employed in dealing with the material of the history. Each person therein has been identified by a letter and/or number placed in front of his name, to indicate his descent, and so far as possible the order of his birth. Thus in the case of the three brothers of the second generation they have been identified thus: (A) GEORGE, (B) NICHOLAS, Sr., (C) LUDWICK, Sr. Children of each of these men have been listed with Roman numerals before their names. For example: (B) I Nicholas Jr. After the Roman numeral follow other numbers which denote the descent of later generations, and order of birth in a given family. For example: (C)V2 denotes the second child of the fifth child of Ludwick, Sr., whose identification is the letter (C). Everyone with (C) before his name is a descendant of Ludwick, Sr. Again, (C)V 223 designates the third child of the second child of (C) V2. Where there are more than nine children in a family the identifying number has been written thus: (C) II 12.1, indicating the first child of the twelfth child, etc.

Counting the first of our ancestors in America as of the first generation, every descendant has been grouped in his proper generation thereafter. A man's children have been listed under his name; and each of those children who in turn is known to have become the head of a family has been carried forward to the next generation. The names of husbands or wives who have married Lybargers are printed in capitals. The following abbreviations have been used: B.-born. M.-married. D.-died. Co.-county. Twp.-township.

Beginning with the fifth generation, after the names of each person have been included in order the names of his father, grandfather, great-grandfather, etc. For example: LEWIS (Daniel, Henry Sr., Ludwick Sr., Johann Adam). Thus we see Lewis' descent from Johann Adam, his great-great-grandfather.

I am most grateful for the material assistance given by many relatives and correspondents. Without their help no family history could have been written.

In conclusion I can do no better than repeat what I said in the edition of 1921. In compiling a history of this sort I realize that there are many chances for errors to creep into the pages, even after the greatest care. I trust, therefore, that my readers will forgive these sins of omission, and not hesitate to call my attention to them. In dealing with data and dates many of which have lain undiscovered for over a hundred years, there is always a possibility of mistakes; but I have arrived at no conclusion or included nothing without considerable investigation; so I trust that the following pages contain an accurate outline of our family.

Let us not, however, regard the record of our family as closed and completed. Rather may this history serve to stimulate our interest and spur us on to further investigation. There is always opportunity for greater accuracy and better accomplishment. I feel that this present book is but the record of what is known presently of our history and that with the passing of time we shall be able to acquire many more facts concerning the Lybarger family. May I not urge everyone who is interested in maintaining our family records to keep in touch with me from time to time; for I shall always welcome word concerning our kinsmen. Let us make it our task, therefore, to preserve the records of the past and present for those of the future.

DONALD FISHER LYBARGER

CHAPTER ONE

ORIGIN OF THE FAMILY

The first of the Lybarger kinsmen to come to America emigrated from the Palatinate in the early part of the eighteenth century. This district, now Rhenish Bavaria, lies in a flat, fertile country along the River Rhine, bordering Alsace-Lorraine. Two hundred years ago this area was the battle ground of Europe's warring lords. For years the lands of the Palatinate and Alsace-Loraine had been continually devastated; their villages destroyed; and their thrifty citizens tortured, robbed, and murdered. Religious persecutions, the tyranny of autocrats, destructive wars, failure of crops, famine, and economic bankruptcy were all forces which turned the minds of the people toward the New World. With conditions thus, William Penn made a number of visits to the Palatinate and urged her people to seek peace and security in the Province of Pennsylvania.

The response to this invitation was immediate and overwhelming. Thousands of farmers and artisans, often whole communities, abandoned the land of their birth and started for America. The route followed by the Palatines lay down the River Rhine to the seaport of Rotterdam, Holland; thence to Deal, England; and finally across the Atlantic to Philadelphia. The newcomers were especially anxious to settle in Pennsylvania or Maryland because religious toleration was assured, and economic opportunity was almost without limit.

On the tide of this migration from the Palatinate there came to Philadelphia, JOHANN ADAM LEBERGER and his wife BARBARA. They had taken passage on the ship "Pink Johnson", of London, which sailed from Rotterdam and Deal, and which reached America on September 19, 1732.[1]

Johann Adam Leberger and his family then settled in the neighborhood of Philadelphia. After a residence of at least seven years in the province as required, he became a full subject of the English Crown. The record shows that Adam Leberger, a resident of Philadelphia County, took the oath of citizenship and allegiance on September 26, 1740. He is mentioned as being of Quaker faith.[2]

In the year 1745 there was an Adam Leberger among the members of the "Renewed Church of the United Bretheran," at Piles' Grove, New Jersey, just across the Delaware River and not far from Philadelphia.[1] This may be our ancestor. But we have no further record which is definite. So we conclude that Johann Adam Leberger lived and died near the City of Philadelphia some years prior to the Revolution.

The family of Johann Adam Leberger was probably a large one. Just where all of his sons settled or what became of them is uncertain. It is possible that some moved up the Delaware River and settled in Northampton Co., Pennsylvania; for we find there settlers named Abraham Leeberger, John and Jacob Leibersberger.[1] But after careful search we have failed to locate any relative in that section of the country today.

It is worthy of note that on August 27, 1739 there arrived at Philadelphia the ship "Snow Betsy", from Rotterdam and Deal, with Richard Budden its Commander. Among its male passengers over 16 years of age was NICHOLAS LEYBERGER. It well may be that the Nicholas here mentioned was the one who some thirty years later settled in Bedford County, Pa.; or he may have been the father of Nicholas, Sr., the pioneer in Bedford County.[2]

Meaning of the Name

There are several possible interpretations of the name which our ancestor brought to America in 1732. In its original form it would seem to be the French "Le Berger" or as it is also spelled, "La Bergère," meaning "the shepherd." I have found one early record where the name was written in the former way, although generally it was "Leberger" and a search of any French city directory will reveal people whose name is spelled thus.

In "Surnames" (Ernest Weekley, 1927) the author says (Pg. 287) in speaking of French surnames: "When we come to occupative names, we are again confronted by crowds of diminutives. Corresponding to our Shepherd we find not only Berger, Leberger, Labergère, but also Bergerat, Bergeret, Bergeron, Bergerot, to quote only the most frequent variants . . . ."

Coming as they did from a district bordering France, our ancestors may formerly have been Protestant subjects of that nation who were driven from it by religious persecution. But at the time of their immigration they spoke the German tongue, and they came from the territory of a German prince. In the German language "ley," "leah," or "loh" signify a meadow or swardland; while "burger" means a "freedman of a burgh or borough entitled to enjoy the privileges of the community." "Burger" and "berger" were frequently interchanged. Thus our name would denote a citizen of the lowlands.

In spelling our surname has been varied many times. This is due to a number of very natural causes: (1) The handwriting of our forefathers was often difficult to read and transcribe; (2) clerks gathering records in those days were very poor spellers and even worse writers, so they wrote down the name as it sounded to them, making little effort to get it accurately; (3) two hundred years ago orthography was largely a matter of individual taste, so it was not unnatural to vary the spelling of proper names. But gradually the name came to be standardized so that we have it in its present form; and after these many years we are well justified in pronouncing it a truly American surname. Here are some of the variations in spelling, in the order in which they are found in records: Leberger, Le Berger, Lehberger, Leyberger, Leinberger, Leyenberger, Laybariger, Lightenberger, Lieberger, Liberger, Lebarger, Leibarger, Libarger, Lyaberger, Lyberger and finally Lybarger.

DID THE LYBARGER FAMILY FIRST SETTLE IN MARYLAND?

We have always been under the impression that the first of the Lybargers to migrate to America from the Palatinate or the Alsace-Lorraine area, came to Pennsylvania. Newly discovered evidence, however, may indicate that possibly they came first to Baltimore and settled in Frederick County, Maryland.

The first link in this chain is the affidavit of Nicholas Lybarger, Jr., given at Erie, Pa., August 6, 1832, when he sought a Revolutionary War Pension. In it he states:

> "...he was born in Frederick County, Maryland and remained a resident of Londonderry (twp) Bedford County, till he came to this (Erie) County ...."

At that time he was 78 years old, placing his birth in the year 1753 or 1754.

In a letter dated August 15, 1915 (in my family history file)

Mina E. Lybarger tells of a visit with old Jacob Lybarger of Monroe Mills, Ohio, (then a very old man). I am not certain of Jacob's relationship. The letter reads in part:

> "Jacob Lybarger remembers having heard Samuel Lybarger tell that his (Samuel Lybarger's) great grandfather landed in Baltimore."

In a letter dated March 1, 1909, Elijah F. Lybarger(C.V.4.5.1), a grandson of William (C.V.4), born 1809, in speaking of what his grandfather told, says, in part:

> "He further told me that his great grandfather and grandmother (that would be Ludwick Lybarger Sr's father and mother) came to Virginia on the 'Indenture plan', having to work three years for their freedom."

Since Maryland and Virginia are contiguous there could be confusion as to which state was meant.

The affidavit of Nicholas, Jr., definitely establishes that his parents were in Frederick Co., Maryland in 1753-54.

The following quotation from "Tercentenary History of Maryland" (1925) Vol. I, p.489, throws light on the migration of Palatines to Frederick County, Maryland.

Speaking of "Germans from the Palatinate of the Rhine, who came to be known as Palatines":

> "These people were fleeing from almost constant devastation of war...by which their native land was made desolate. The fifth Lord Baltimore, holding that these industrious people then refugeeing in Holland would be available for settling the western portion of his Province and thereby strengthening it in border disputes and in wars with the French, offered special inducements to them to establish themselves in Frederick County. If they agreed to settle on this frontier, they were to be exempt from Proprietory Quit-rents for three years. The Palatines took up land on these terms; and despite the disastrous raids of the French and Indians, which must have made the immigrants feel for a time, at least, that they had flown to new ills even worse than the old ones, the Valleys of the Monocacy and the Antietam bloomed with fields of wheat, which, even before the Revolution, became an important article of export.

"The first German immigrants are believed to have arrived in 1729, the year of the incorporation of Baltimore Town, their future seaport and Market.

"Monocacy was the first town laid out by the Germans, and it was here that they built their first log church. In a short time Lutheran, German Reformed, Moravian, Tunker and other churches, were established in Maryland. ...Thomas Schley was one of a party of about one hundred families of Germans from the Palatinate who arrived in America by way of Annapolis in 1735 and settled on Carroll Creek, near Monocacy, and began the town of Frederick. Other Germans had arrived and settled down around the site of the present town about 1734."

See also "History of Frederick County," (Williams).

The following quotations from "History of Western Maryland" (J.T.Scharf, 1882), pages 59, 61, and 64 are also of interest:

"To German immigrants from Pa. and the Palatinate must be ascribed the largest share in that wonderful development of the fertile plains and valleys of Western Maryland...." (59)

"At first the German immigrants settled in the vicinity of Philadelphia, but gradually advancing westward, soon spread over the southern counties of Pa., and crossed the border into Maryland." (61)

The writer points out that as early as 1748 Germans had taken up tracts along Monocacy and Catoctin Creek--near Emmitsburg, Creagerstown, etc.; and that a great majority of Germans drifted down from Lancaster and York Counties, Pa. (64)

Frederick County in Maryland was formed in 1748 and Washington County in 1776. The town of Frederick was founded in 1745.

It is my opinion,based on family tradition, that the second generation of Lybargers came from Pennsylvania into Frederick County, Maryland in the period from 1745-55, and then via Fort Cumberland to the Wolf Camp Run and Little Wills Creek area in Cumberland Valley Township or Londonderry Township of Bedford Co., Pa., in about 1771-4.

THE FIRST LYBARGERS IN BEDFORD COUNTY, PA.

A decade prior to the Revolution the general movement of migration was toward the western counties of Pennsylvania and Maryland. Years before, daring men had blazed the way through the wilderness to the foothills of the Alleghenies and beyond. Washington himself had gone on an important mission into the wilds of western Pennsylvania to the French fort on the Ohio River. In the French and Indian War Braddock had advanced through Maryland to Fort Cumberland, and then had cut a road in a northwesterly direction toward Fort Duquesne. Sturdy pioneers soon followed and extended the frontier. Thus the southern tier of Pennsylvania counties grew steadily: Lancaster, York, and Cumberland; then Fulton, Somerset, and Bedford.

Cradled in the hills and valley of Southwestern Pennsylvania lies Bedford County. It is on the border of the State contiguous to Maryland and about 200 miles west of Philadelphia. Its county seat is Bedford, where a fort was built by General Forbes in 1758. At that time Military roads were constructed from Carlisle to Fort Pitt, via Fort Bedford, and southward from Bedford to Fort Cumberland in Maryland. Wills Mountain runs in a northerly direction thru the western part of the county, and west of this mountain chain Wills Creek flows south and empties into the Potomac River at Cumberland.

Bedford County was established by law March 9, 1771. White settlers had come to the area as early as 1750, but it was not until after the county was set up that they began occupying the rich bottom lands between the mountains. Life was rugged and the newcomers often had to look to Fort Bedford for protection. Sherman Day in "Historical Collections of the State of Penna." (1843) says, (pg. 121) -- "Although the inhabitants were from the time of the first settlements constantly on their guard against the Indians, yet the principal trouble commenced at the breaking out of the Revolutionary War. A frontier life at that time was one constant scene of strife and danger. Bedford Co. was at that time the Allegheny frontier, and her inhabitants were, consequently, exposed to the full force of savage fury, and severely did it often fall upon them..."

The early settlers lacked all of the "creature comforts" to which their descendants have become accustomed. The writer just mentioned quotes as follows from a Rev. Doddridge (pg. 124):

"The furniture for the table, for several years after the settlement of this country, consisted of a few pewter dishes, plates and spoons; but mostly of wooden bowls, trenchers, and noggins. If these last were scarce, gourds and hard-shelled squashes made up the deficiency. The iron pots, knives, and forks were brought from the east side of the mountains, along with the salt and iron, on pack-horses.

"These articles of furniture corresponded very well with the articles of diet on which they were employed. 'Hog and hominy' were proverbial for the dish of which they were the component parts. Jonny cake and pone were, at the outset of settlements of the country, the only forms of bread in use for breakfast and dinner. At supper milk and mush were the standard dish."

No little credit is due the sturdy Scotch-Irish and German pioneers who, braving every hazard, built up the newly organized County of Bedford. An interesting comment on the roughness of the country in which our forefathers lived during the early days of Bedford Co. is found in a petition signed by the inhabitants of that county on May 18, 1778, which seeks the aid of the Assembly against incursions of the Indians. The same year the tax assessors of the county drew up a statement saying that the condition of the people made the collecting of a tax impossible. They stated: "For eighteen months past the inhabitants have almost entirely been deprived of the fruits of their labors." Most of them had fled from their fields to seek safety at Bedford. Those that ventured back were murdered by Indians. And the statement concluded: "There is not bread enough among us to sustain the inhabitants till harvest."

In the southwest corner of Bedford County as now constituted lies Londonderry Township (formed in 1785) and just east of it, traversed by Wills Mountain, is Cumberland Valley Township (formed in 1771). Into this area before the Revolutionary War came three brothers, GEORGE, NICHOLAS and LUDWICK LYBARGER, (the ancestors of all Lybargers living today). They settled along Wolf Camp Run which flows into Wills Creek at what is now Madley, Pa. (on Pa. Route No. 96) about 15 or 20 miles north of Cumberland, Md. Our knowledge concerning them springs from family tradition, church records, burial places, local histories, deed and will records and the archives preserved and published by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. A review of our earliest records affords an interesting study.

It is certain that Ludwick Lybarger was in Cumberland Valley Township in 1774. In the Prothonotary's Office at Bedford is found a warrant (#70) for 100 acres of unpatented land issued to him by the state January 19, 1785. It indicates that the land was occupied March 1, 1774.

On what is called the "Return of Taxables" found in Pa. Archives, 3rd Series, Vol. XXII, no Lybargers are found listed in Cumberland Valley Twp. for 1773, the first year for which such records are available (pg.8). It is possible, however, that George Lybarger was in Bedford Township that year (pg. 19). George paid tax in Cumberland Valley Township in 1774 (pg.70), and in 1775 the names of George and Nicholas appear on the tax list. The year 1776 was the first when the names of George, Nicholas and Ludwick are found as taxpayers in Cumberland Valley Township (pg. 154).

In 1779 a "Return of Property" indicates ownership of property in the same Township as follows:

	Acres	Horses	Cattle	Sheep
Ludwick Lybarger	50	4	3	2
Nicholas Lybarger	100	3	0	0

The name of George does not appear. (Pg. 163).

In 1783 a "Federal Supply Tax" for the support of the Government was levied, and among those listed in Cumberland Valley Township (pg. 264) are:

	Acres	Horses	Cattle	Sheep	Tax
George Lybarger	150	3	3	4	2.7.0
Ludwick Lybarger	50	4	3	0	1.9.0
_____ Lybarger	100	2	3	5	2.2.8

An interesting bit of evidence as to the families of the early Lybargers is found in what appears to be an early attempt at a census in Pennsylvania. It is the "Return of Land and Number of Inhabitants" for 1784 in Cumberland Valley Township. (See Pg.321):

	Acres	Dwelling Houses	Whites	Blacks
George Lybarger	100	1	5	0
Nicholas Lybarger	100	1	7	0

After the Federal Government had become firmly established one of its first acts was to require that a census be taken of the inhabitants of each State. We learn from "Heads of Families in Penna. in 1790" page 23, that the following Lybargers were living in Bedford County:

Name	Males over 16 yrs.	Ms. under 16 yrs.	Females Including Wife
Lybarger, Ludwick (1)	1	1	3
" " (2)	1	1	2
" Nicholas	1	4	2
" Ludwick (3)	1	0	1
" " (4)	1	1	3
" Hendrey	1	3	2

Microfilm copies of the Census of 1800 are now available. The return for Bedford County, Pa., for 1800 lists the following Lybargers:

	Males					Females
Londonderry Twp.	To 10	10 16	16 26	26 45	Over 45	To 10	10 16	16 26	26 45	Over 45
Ludwick, Sr.	2				1	1		1
Nicholas			1		1					1
Ludwick, Jr.	3			1		3	2		1
Ludwick (3rd)	5			1		1	1		1
Henry	5	1		1		1	1		1
George			1			1		1
Nicholas, Jr.	2	1		1		1	1	1	1
Frederick	1			1					1
Andrew			2		1			1	1
Bedford Boro
Daniel	1		1	1		4		1

The Census of 1810 indicates that there were living in Londonderry Township the following Lybargers: Ludwick, Sr., Ludwick, Jr., Ludwick, 3rd, Henry, Frederick and a Daniel. In Bedford Boro was also a Daniel.

In 1820 the list has changed to include Ludwick, Sr., Ludwick, Jr., Barbara (Widow of Henry), Frederick and Daniel in Londonderry Township, and Daniel in Bedford Boro.

MILITARY RECORD

At the ourbreak of the Revolutionary War, Bedford County was indeed on the frontier of the new nation and its inhabitants were exposed to the full force of savage furor. It was therefore incumbent on all able bodied men to take up arms for the protection of their homes and country.

May 19, 1778, Captain Samuel Paxton, a resident of Cumberland Valley Township and an innkeeper of the community[1] organized the 4th Company, 1st Battalion of Bedford County Militia, known as the "Wills Creek Settlement Company." Its officers under Captain Paxton were 1st.Lieutenant Matthew Kelly, 2nd Lieutenant Richard Wood and Ensign Jacob Croy. At the head of the original muster roll is the name of Ludwick Lybarger, and with him in the company were Nicholas, Sr., Nicholas,Jr., George and Henry Lybarger. I have a photograph of the original muster roll which is preserved at Harrisburg,Pa., among the records in the State House.[2] The service records of the Lybargers listed have been established as the basis of membership in the Sons of the American Revolution[3] and the Daughters of the American Revolution.[4]

On a hill near Madley, Pa., along Wolf Camp Run, stands Lybarger Lutheran Church. In front of it the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania has erected a flag pole and placed a monument to mark the resting place of the Lybargers who were soldiers in the Revolution and whose graves are nearby.

The bronze plaque on the monument reads:

Some years ago there came to my attention a remarkable document that tells of the military service of one man particularly, but is applicable to the record of the others who served with him. It is an affidavit made by Nicholas Lybarger, Jr., in 1832 in Erie County, Pa., when, as a man 78 years old, he applied for a pension.[1]

Here is what Nicholas Lybarger, Jr., said concerning service in the Revolutionary War between 1775 and 1779:

"In the year 1775 I was a resident in the township of Londonderry, Bedford County and State of Pennsylvania and in the month of May in the same year in the same county, I entered the company of volunteers raised for the defense of the country against the Indians under the command of Capt. Charles Cessna.[2] We were employed in scouting the country and defending the inhabitants from attack of the Indians. We were employed in Bedford County during the time we were in service. I remained in that service and in that company for a period of six weeks when I was dismissed and went home.

"In the fall of the same year, 1775, the Indians killed two men at Frankstown on the Juniata River, then in Bedford County. I was then, in the month of November in the same year, again called out, I having joined said company as a volunteer to defend the country against the Indians. The Company was still commanded by Capt. Charles Cessna. We were again employed in scouting the Country and in the protection of the inhabitants from the incursions of the Indians. We were at this time employed in the said service for the period of seven weeks and were then dismissed and I returned home.

"In the latter part of the month of May 1776, I was still residing in the same township of Londonderry and a member of the said volunteer company, Capt. Cessna had removed to Carolina and the command of the company had devolved on Lieutenant Michael Oserwalt.[3] I was at that time again called out for the protection of the inhabitants of that county against the Indians. Our headquarters were at Tygarts garrison at Frankstown. We were employed every day on scouting parties from the garrison, sometimes we were out three or four days before we returned to the garrison. We continued five weeks in this service at this time and were then dismissed and returned home again.

2. - Pa. Ar. 5th Series, Vol. 5, pp. 49, 61, 82
3. - Oserwalt or Oswalt - See Same p. 116

"In the fall of the year 1776 in the month of November, about the 15th, the Indians made an incursion into Morrison's cove in Bedford County and burnt Ulricks Mill and killed all Ulrick's family but one who was absent at the time. On this occasion all the volunteers and militia of Bedford County were called out and some from Conegocheague. We were collected at the town of Bedford and Col. Davidson[1] of the militia took command. I was there as a volunteer in the company commanded by Lieutenant Oserwalt. There were two companies of volunteers and three of militia. Capt. George Inslow[2] commanded one of the companies, Capt. William McCall[3] commanded another. We were marched from Bedford to Morrison's Cove and from thence to Frankstown on the Juniata. We went to Fetter's Garrison; the militia kept the garrison and the volunteers were kept sentry in the country and looking for the Indians. We were about five weeks in the service when we were dismissed and went home.

"In the month of April 1777 Lieutenant Oserwalt's company of volunteers of which I was still a member were again called out and myself with them to keep Tygart's garrison at Frankstown and to scout the country and protect the inhabitants from the Indians. We were marched to Tygart's garrison and kept on duty at this time about three weeks sometimes keeping garrison and sometimes scouting the country. We were relieved by a company of militia from Huntington County (then Bedford County) and were then dismissed and went home.

"In the time of harvest of the same year 1777 an Indian trail was discovered by a boy hunting cows, the alarm was given and the volunteers were called out. Our company was called out under Lieutenant Oserwalt. The company of Bedford scouts commanded by Capt. Richard Delap[4] was called out. We were in pursuit of the Indians. Our Company went along a ridge of the mountains, the Bedford scouts went into a gap of the mountains and were ambushed by the Indians and the Capt. and the men belonging to the company except four were killed at the first fire. Our company was on a hill called the Chimney Ridge. We went to Tygart's garrison and soon after we arrived there one of the men who had escaped by the name of Michael Wallack arrived at the garrison and give us the information of the company's having been cut off. They were killed three or four miles from Tygart's garrison. On hearing the news we went out there to the place where they were killed and found the men lying dead on the ground. Thirty men were killed. We buried the dead and then returned to the garrison. We remained in the garrison about five days and then scouted the country. We then returned to the town of Bedford and after being in service on this tour six weeks were dismissed.

"In the month of June 1778 I was again called out in what was called the big scout in the same company of volunteers commanded by Lieutenant Oserwalt in the Battalion commanded by Major Woods of Bedford. We rendezvoused at Bedford; the battalion consisted of two hundred and eighty-two men. We were marched from thence to Conemaugh (then in Bedford County now in Somerset County) from thence to Black Lick and fron thence to Clearfield and came out into Bald Eagle Valley (now Centre Co.) and from thence we came to Frankstown and from thence to Bedford. We were in search of Indians and expected to find them at Clearfield but did not come up with them. We got out of provisions on our march and were three days without any. We were seven weeks on this tour from the time we collected at Bedford to the time we returned there again. We were then dismissed and returned home.

"Early in the month of May 1779 two men were killed by the Indians near George Wisegarber's garrison. This occasioned an alarm. Our company of volunteers was at this time broken. I was called out in a company of militia commanded by Capt. Evan Cessna[1] to serve a term of two months. We were employed in scouting the country from Bedford to Frankstown and in the neighboring country. I served two months on this tour and was then discharged and went home.

"Soon after I was discharged-vis-in the month of August 1779. A man by the name of Thomas McFarron in the same county was killed and a man by the name of Jacob Plum, who lived a near neighbor to me was taken prisoner. The militia were again called out. I was then called out in a company of militia commanded by Capt. William McIntire. We were employed in scouting the country and were sometimes stationed at James Martin's garrison fourteen miles from Bedford on the Juniata River. While we were there George Beck, his wife and family residing about a mile and a half from the garrison were killed by the Indians. We went there from the garrison and I helped bury the dead. We were out scouting till our time expired. I served on this tour for two months and then was dismissed and went home."

Among the Revolutionary soldiers from Bedford County, listed as in the "Continental Line", who received what was called "Depreciation Pay", were George and Nicholas Lybarger, both privates. On one record Nicholas is listed as an officer.[2]

After the Revolutionary War the militia organization was maintained. From"a list of the inhabitants of Bedford Co. made subject to the militia laws of this state" (February 3, 1789) we learn of Daniel Lybarger in Bedford Township, and of Ludwick, Henry, another Ludwick, and Ludwick Lybarger, Jr., in Londonderry Township.[1]

During the notorious Whiskey Rebellion in Western Pennsylvania in 1794, Ludwick Lybarger was a Lieutenant in the 4th Company, 1st Battalion of Bedford Co. Militia. At a later date he served as Ensign in another company.[2]

LYBARGER LUTHERAN CHURCH

Near the brow of a hill not far from Madley, Pa., stands Lybarger Lutheran Church, a memorial to the early Lybargers who helped found the congregation and who worshiped there more than one hundred fifty years ago.

As early as 1805, and doubtless long before that date, services were held at the home of Henry Lybarger. There is in existence a record book of the church (of which I have a copy) containing lists of those who attended communion services, and the names of heads of families with the dates of birth or baptism of their children.

At first the congregation was known as "Little Wills Creek Church". In 1822 Rev. Jacob Crigler was its pastor, and in 1835 Rev. August S. Rust was pastor. As early as 1840 a church building was erected. In 1883 David Lybarger donated land and soon thereafter the present church was erected and apparently the name now used was chosen.

At the first communion service on record, November 17, 1805, among those present were Henry, Daniel, Adam, Ludwick, Sr., and Barbara Lybarger. May 3, 1807, appeared the names: Ludwick, Jr., Elizabeth; Ludwick Sr., Phebe; Daniel, Esther; Henry, Sr., Barbara, and Henry Lybarger, Jr. Confirmed were Mary and Catherine Lybarger. Throughout many succeeding years the names of many Lybargers are found on the record. At the service held October 26, 1826, in attendance were Ludwick, Jr., Jesse, Anthony, Daniel, Ludwick Sr., Benjamin, Elizabeth, Esther, Phillena, Susana, Barbara. Confirmed were Jacob, Susana and Elizabeth Lybarger.

2.- Same, Vol. IV pp. 187, 451; Vol. V. pp. 106, 113, 115

Among records of baptisms are the names of children of Ludwick,Sr., Ludwick,Jr., Daniel, George, Henry, Valentine, Peter, Jesse, Anthony, Joseph, Isaac and David Lybarger. The Church record book is not only a valuable source of vital statistics, but is a silent witness to the deeply religious conviction of the early members of the Lybarger Family who settled in Bedford County.

THE THREE BROTHERS

The three brothers, George, Nicholas and Ludwick Lybarger, who pushed westward with their families, were men who perhaps ranged in age from 25 to 40 years when they entered Bedford County in 1773 or shortly thereafter. The exact dates of their birth are uncertain. They fought in the war as did two of their sons. They acquired property, tilled the land, established themselves in various occupations, helped found a church and reared their families.

(A) GEORGE, B._____, D. July 5-16,1788. M. SUSANA GISE.

Family tradition has it that George was the oldest of the brothers. He settled in Bedford County in 1773 or shortly thereafter and owned land there. In 1784 he had a wife and four (4) children. His will was signed July 5, 1788, and probated July 16, 1788, thus fixing the approximate date of his death. At that time he had a daughter, Mrs. Richard Baker and minor children whose names we do not know. It is likely that he had sons named George and Ludwick and other descendants, some of whom may have moved west, but at this time (1958) they have not been identified.

Children:

I (Daughter), Mrs. Richard Baker

(B) NICHOLAS, SR. B. before 1755, D. March, 1808.
M. MARY ANN.

Nicholas Sr. first appears on the tax records of Cumberland Valley Township in 1775. He owned a hundred acres of land there, and in 1784 and 1790 had a wife and six children in his family. In 1800 he and his wife were over 45 years old, and had at home one son between 16 and 26 years. His will was signed July 3, 1803, and probated March 11, 1808. (Wills, Vol. I,pg. 253, Bedford County Records). We are certain of the names of only four of his children although he likely had a large family. In 1832 Nicholas, Jr., stated that he had a brother then living in Ohio. The name of his widow is found among the communicants of Little Wills Creek Church for June 26, 1814 (pg.45) and as late as 1826 (pg.48).

(C) LUDWICK, SR., B. (before 1755), D. August, 1827.
M. (1) BARBARA: (2) PHILBENA (PHOEBE)

"Ludwick Lybarger was a very early settler of Londonderry Township. He located on Wolf Camp Run, about a half mile from the present Lutheran Church, while the Indians were still so numerous as to give great annoyance to the settlers. The family was once obliged to flee to Cumberland for Safety." This quotation is from "History of Bedford County, Pa." (Blackburn) Vol. I, Pg.239.

No name in family history annals is more fascinating than that of Ludwick Lybarger, progenitor of so many living Lybargers. It is certain that he had settled in Bedford County in 1774 and perhaps earlier, taking up land as previously noted. In 1784 he had a wife and five (5) children in his family. Since there were four "Ludwicks" on the census of 1790 it is impossible to identify any one of them for certain.

Much tradition surrounds Ludwick's name. In May, 1927, I visited John A. Lybarger who resided close to old Ludwick's farm. He recalled hearing much concerning his great-grandfather from his great-uncle. Ludwick was a man of great physical strength and retained all of his teeth until his death, and his eyesight was little impaired by age. He was able to take a sack of grain in his teeth and throw it over his shoulder. He is said to have lived to be over a hundred years old. After the death of his first wife Barbara, he married a second time, his wife's name being Philbena, or sometimes shortened to Phoebe. She was the mother of the last seven or eight children listed below.

Ludwick's farm lay about a mile west of Madley, Pa., on Wolf Camp Run. He had a tannery and still on this property, and erected one of the first mills in that part of the county. In 1927 the land was owned by William C. Curley. The house Ludwick built in his later years was still standing although the original cabin along the Run had disappeared. Ludwick Sr. was buried on this farm but in 1927 his grave was no longer marked with a headstone. John A. Lybarger remembered placing flowers on it when he was a child.

The names of Ludwick Sr. and his wife Phoebe appear as communicants of Little Wills Creek Church in the years from 1805 to 1826. Tradition has it that one morning Ludwick had been sowing oats and came home from the field for the noon day meal. He laid down for a few minutes rest and peacefully passed away.

Ludwick's will was signed Feb. 20, 1827 and probated August 17, 1827. In it he mentions his wife Philabena, two of his older sons and his younger children. (Wills, Vol. II, pg.241, Bedford County Records). At that time most of his older children had moved to Ohio. There is no record to tell us accurately of the order of birth of the children listed.

CHAPTER TWO

THE THIRD GENERATION

Migration to Ohio

The first decade of the nineteenth century witnessed a great movement of population from the Atlantic coast states to Ohio and the middle west. Pennsylvania was rapidly becoming settled, and as her numbers grew the opportunity for acquiring land became less. But beyond the Ohio River lay a fertile country still unclaimed, and waiting only for settlers. The younger generation was not slow in grasping this chance for betterment. So the tide of migration swept westward.

The route of the new settlers lay across the old Forbes' Road through southern Pennsylvania, then down the Ohio River, and next up its tributaries to the districts where farmland was abundant. Other pioneers, following a different course, invaded the great Western Reserve, as the district along the lake and southward from it, was called.

Influenced by this great movement, many of the Lybargers of the third and fourth generations in America migrated to Ohio, where they became pioneer settlers of the new state, just as their fathers had been in Pennsylvania. As early as 1808 Lybargers from Bedford County, Pa., moved into Coshocton County, Ohio, where they located in Bedford Township. But it was chiefly in Knox County, in central Ohio, that the Lybargers settled in the early 1800's, and where today many of their descendants still live. From here the family branched out into western Ohio, then into Indiana and Illinois, Iowa and in succeeding generations into all parts of the west.

SONS OF NICHOLAS LYBARGER, SR. (B)

B.I - NICHOLAS, JR. B. 1753-4 in Frederick County, Maryland; D. Feb. 16, 1836 in Erie County, Pa. M. in May, 1783 at Cumberland Valley,Bedford Co., Pa. to CHRISTIANA REED.

Nicholas Lybarger, Jr., rendered extensive service in the Revolutionary War as heretofore set forth. From pension records we learn the date of his death.[1] It has been said that he migrated to Springfield Township, Erie County, Pa. in 1798.[2] However his name is found on pension records for 1800 in Londonderry Township, Bedford County, Pa. He and his wife are listed as being between 26 and 45 years old and as having two sons and one daughter under ten, a son and daughter between 10 and 16, and a daughter between 16 and 26 years.

In any event, Nicholas Lybarger, Jr. did settle in Erie County, Pa., and resided there for many years until his death.

2. John, Jan. 1, 1787
3. Mary Ann, Oct. 28, 1788

B.II - HENRY, B. Dec. 28, 1759; D. July 31, 1820. M. BARBARA _____, B. March, 1761, D. September 8, 1828. Henry, son of Nicholas Sr., was born perhaps in Maryland. Heretofore it was thought that his father was Ludwick, Sr.; but his parentage is definitely established by the will of his father Nicholas, Sr. His wife's family name is not known. During the Revolution he served in Captain Paxton's Company, as noted above. He was liable for military service in 1789. On the census of 1790 he had three sons under sixteen years of age and one daughter. He was active in founding Wills Creek Lutheran Church and often held services at his home. On his death in 1820 his will was recorded in Vol. II, pg.30 of Bedford County Will Records. His wife Barbara died in 1828, and her will is found in Vol. II,pg.286. In it she mentions her seven sons and two daughters.

Children: (with dates of birth)
1. Daniel, 1786
2. Henry, December 21, 1788
3. Adam, November 5, 1789
4. Andrew, April 20, 1791
5. Magdeline, August 6, 1793
6. Hannah, April 4, 1783
7. Peter, March 5, 1798
8. Anthony, May 31, 1800
9. Jesse, March 1, 1803

B.III - LUDWICK. His name is mentioned in the will of his father, Nicholas, Sr. Other than this it has not been possible to identify this Ludwick.

B.IV - GEORGE. A letter dated October 25, 1955, from Loren L. Butts of Dallas, Texas, a descendant of Nicholas, Jr., says:

"It is a family tradition in our line that John Lybarger (son of Nicholas, Jr.) migrated from Erie County, Pa. to Bangs, Ohio, about 1820, where his uncle had already been living and was a wheelwright, his uncle being named George." It is impossible to be sure of George's identification other than this reference. The census of 1820 indicates that two George Lybargers were living in Jackson Township, Knox County, Ohio, that year. Both are listed as farmers over 45 years of age and having children.

CHILDREN OF LUDWICK LYBARGER, SR. (C)

The children of Ludwick Lybarger, Sr., cannot be listed in the exact order of their birth because at this time many dates are not known. However there is available proof that the following were his children, either by the first or second marriage.

C.I - FREDERICK, B. 1774. In a letter to my father, dated March 8, 1909, Jasper R. Lybarger, a grandson of Andrew listed below, states that Andrew had a brother named Frederick. His name is found on the census records for Londonderry Township, Bedford County, Pa., for 1800, when he and his wife were between 26 and 45 years old, and had a son under 10 years. In 1810 his and his wife's ages were still between 26 and 45, and there were two sons and one daughter under 10 years. The family is listed in the same location in 1820. It is probable that Frederick moved to Ohio in 1820, for his name is found in Jackson Township, Knox County, Ohio, and two sons under 16 are listed in 1820 and on subsequent census records. In 1840 the name of Frederick, Jr., is found in Harrison Township with a son and daughter between 15 and 20 years.

In 1850 Frederick was 76 years old and in his family were John, age 47, Frederick 49 and Mary 60, all born in Pennsylvania. It cannot be determined who Mary was, whether wife or other relative. Knox County marriage records indicate that Frederick, Jr., married Mary Wolford on Jan. 12, 1832.

Children: 1. Frederick, Jr., B. 1801
2. John, B. 1803

C.II - LUDWICK, JR. B._____, D._____. M. ELIZABETH _____, B. April 1, 1767, D. Feb. 19, 1833. Ludwick, Jr., the second son of Ludwick, was born in about 1764. He was not old enough to serve in the Revolution, but was eligible for duty in 1789. The state surveyed land for him in Bedford Co. in 1789. He was married and had three children prior to 1790. Ludwick lived all his life in Bedford Co., inheriting his father's property along Wills Creek. He was active in the affairs of the Lutheran Church, for his name frequently appears on the records. From one record of baptisms we learned of all his children. It is Ludwick's descendants who still reside in Bedford.

Children:

1. Elizabeth, February 3, 1786.
2. Esther, August 27, 1787.
3. Lewis, July 8, 1789.
4. George, April 30, 1791.
5. Katherine, July 28, 1793.
6. Mary Magdeline, March 3, 1796.
7. Valentine, February 22, 1798.
8. Mary Ann, June 25, 1800.
9. John, June 26, 1802.
10. Henry, June 30, 1804; D. Nov. 30, 1812.
11. Rebecca, Nov. 3, 1806; D. Nov. 25, 1816.
12. Jacob, August 16, 1808.
13. Daniel, June 15, 1811.
14. Rosey Ann, May 11, 1813.

C.III - DANIEL, B. Feb. 12, 1765 D. August,[2] 1843. M. JANE DEAN. It is likely that Daniel, son of Ludwick, Sr., was born between 1765-68. His name is first mentioned on the records in 1789, when, as a resident of Bedford Township, he became eligible for military service. January 4, 1794 he bought a lot in the town of Bedford, as shown by the record in Deed Book D., pg. 165. He was a blacksmith by trade and was listed as such among the taxpayers in 1796.[1]

His name is found on census records from 1800 to 1840. In 1810 he and his wife are listed as being between 26 and 45 years old. They had three sons and three daughters under 10; a son and two daughters between 10 and 16, and two sons between 16 and 26 years.

Daniel was a member of the Methodist Church. It is family tradition that his daughter Jennie helped serve dinner to President Washington when he was in Bedford on October 19, 1794.

Daniel died early in August, 1843. His will was made July 30th and probated August 7, 1843, and is recorded in Vol. 3, Pg. 256 Bedford County Will Records. In it he devised the "mansion house", lots in Bedford, and his shops and stables to his daughter Rosanna, and also provided for the children of his daughter Margaret by her marriage to William Creuzberg.

At this writing only the names of the following children are known.

Children:
1. Elizabeth
2. Rosanna
3. Margaret, B. May 1, 1799
4. Hester
5. Jennie

C. IV - GEORGE, B. D. ; M. , B. D. George, son of Ludwick Sr., is listed on the census of 1800 as being between 16 and 26 years, and his wife as the same. He must have been born after 1774. He migrated to Knox County, Ohio, in 1808, settling in Howard Township. His name is found on census records there in subsequent years. From Norton's "History of Knox County", p. 324, we learn: "Old Uncle George moved west many years ago, and is now (1862) dead. He was a kind-hearted man of the pioneer stamp".

Children:
1. George, Jr.
2. Rosie DURBIN
3. Mary ROGERS

C. V - ANDREW, B. April 15, 1778, in Bedford Co., Pa.; D. January 15, 1855, at Danville, Ohio. M. NAOMI, daughter of James THOMPSON, B. March 8, 1783; D. August 31, 1867, at Danville, O. Andrew, fifth son of Ludwick Lybarger, married Naomi, a daughter of James Thompson. The latter served during the Revolution in Capt. Jonathan Holmes' Company, 2nd New Jersey Infantry, Continental Line.[1] Shortly after the Revolution Thompson moved with his family into Bedford Co., Pa., where he took up land and settled. The census of 1790 shows that he had four sons and four daughters. Samuel Thompson of Brinkhaven, O., and James Thompson, of Gambier, O., are great-grandsons of James.

The name of Andrew Lybarger first appears on census records in Londonderry Township, Bedford County, Pa., in 1800, but thereafter he is listed in Knox County, Ohio.

Andrew, as well as his father-in-law, migrated with his family to the town of Coshocton, O., in the spring of 1808.[2] Soon afterwards he took up farmland in Tuscarawas Twp. The writer's father, Jesse J. Lybarger, well remembers seeing the old canvas-covered wagon in which Andrew and his family came from Pennsylvania.

1. - "Officers and Men of N. J. in the Rev. War", 1872, pg. 297
2. - "Historical Collections of Coshocton Co." Hunt 1876, pg. 35.

During the War of 1812 Andrew was a mamber of "Johnson's Riflemen", an independent company of riflemen under the command of Colonel Charles Williams. The company officers were: Captain Adam Johnson; Lieutenant Abraham Miller; Ensign Thomas Foster. In August, 1812, this and other companies assembled at Mansfield, O., where they built a blockhouse. It is probable that the company was present at Detroit when Hull surrendered the fort.[1]

On the census of 1820 Andrew, a tanner, is found in Clinton Township, Knox County, Ohio. His children are listed as follows: Three sons and three daughters under 10; two sons and one daughter between 10 and 16; one son and one daughter between 16 and 26 years.

His grandson Jasper Lybarger, in a letter to my father March 1, 1909, says: "Andrew was a large muscular man, big boned, about five feet, eleven inches tall; black hair, dark eyes, dark complection, rough features." In May, 1927, I visited John A. Lybarger who lived at Madley, Pa., close to the farm of his great-grandfather, Ludwick Sr. He remembered hearing his great uncle Benjamin tell of Andrew learning the tanner's trade from Ludwick, Sr., his father, and that Andrew moved west in the early days.

In 1828 Andrew moved to Danville, Knox Co., O., where he established a tannery. The remainder of his life was spent here at his trade. He and his wife were members of the Presbyterian Church. In politics Andrew and all his sons were Jacksonian Democrats. Both Andrew and his wife Naomi are buried in Workman Cemetery, south of Danville, O.

C. VI - LEWIS (called LUDWICK), B._____, D._____, M._____. B._____, D._____. The sixth son of Ludwick was named Lewis. But the family name of Ludwick (really a form of Lewis or Louis) was soon given him, and it stuck with him through life, although he had a brother by the same name. Authority for this is a letter to my father from Jasper R. Lybarger, dated March 8, 1909. The date of his birth is uncertain. Ludwick and his sons were among the first settlers of Howard Twp., Knox Co., O.[1]

He first settled in Knox County, Ohio, but later located in Mohican Township, Ashland County, Ohio. He is found on the list of electors there in 1828, and was a Justice of the Peace in 1827 and 1830.[2] The family is listed on the census records of 1850. Jacob and members of his family are buried in Fairview Evangelical United Brethren Cemetery at Craighton, Wayne Co., six miles south of Wooster, Ohio.

C. IX - BENJAMIN. B. March 18, 1798, D. April 22, 1881, M. SUSAN, B. 1792, D. March 1, 1864. Benjamin lived all of his life in Londonderry Twp., Bedford Co., Pa. He inherited the land of his father and was one of his father's executors. On the census of 1840 he is listed as having a son aged 10-15 and one from 15-20, and two daughters between 5 and 10 years. In 1850 he was listed as a millwright, and there was in his family one Susan Shorty who may have been a daughter. On church records he appears as a communicant in 1821 and thereafter. The names of his children are not known. He is buried in the churchyard of Lybarger Lutheran Church.

C. X - JOSEPH. B. September 1, 1801, D. December 27, 1870. M. SUSAN GIMER (GYMER) B. January 14, 1812, D. March 3, 1880. Joseph, one of Ludwick,Sr.'s, sons by his second wife.[1] He was a church communicant on December 11, 1828. He was one of his father's executors and was willed the "land under the ridge". On the census of 1830 he is shown in Londonderry Twp., Bedford Co., Pa. He located at Keystone, Somerset Co., Pa., and is buried at White Oak Church, near Glencoe.

CHAPTER THREE

THE FOURTH GENERATION

As has already been indicated, in the early 1800's members of the Lybarger family had become quite widely scattered. It is therefore increasingly difficult to identify all of the numerous descendants of the fourth generation, and doubtless there are many of whom we have no knowledge. Even since writing the previous chapter new names have been discovered, but unfortunately the record is still incomplete and it offers a challenge to others to find additional names.

It is certain that Nicholas, Sr. and Ludwick, Sr. had many descendants. I am indebted to Loren L. Butts of Dallas, Texas for much valuable information concerning the Nicholas, Sr. branch of the family.

It should be noted that recently discovered facts have necessitated the rearrangement of several families, and that it is impossible in some instances to place children in the exact order of their birth. Reference to the Census of 1850, where family names were first given in full, has been helpful.

DESCENDANTS OF NICHOLAS LYBARGER, SR. (B)

Children of Nicholas Lybarger, Jr.(B.I)

The names of Nicholas, Jr.'s children come from several sources. Among pension records is a list in Nicholas, Jr.'s handwriting (a copy of which was furnished by his descendant Loren L. Butts). It names John, Anna Mary, Henry, Andrew, Ernest, and Cornelius. Obviously this is incomplete because it omits his eldest child Elizabeth, whose parentage is established by other records, and it may not contain children born after 1801. In 1929 Mrs. Burton Ashley Crane of Erie, Pa. gave me these names of Nicholas, Jr.'s children, with some data concerning them: Elizabeth, John, Mary Ann, Caroline, Rachel, Henry, Cornelius.

B. I - 1 ELIZABETH, B. 1784, D. 1867. M. JOHN DEVORE B. 1770, D. 1838. Elizabeth, oldest child of Nicholas, Jr., was born in Bedford Co., Pa. She married John Devore and the only known child born of this marriage was Thomas J. Devore, (1825-1905). In 1864 he married Emily Thomas (1831-1912) and had a daughter Louise Devore who married J. Miles Hall.*

1. Thomas Devore, (1825-1905)

* See D. A. R. Lineage Book Vol. 151, pg. 105.

B. I - 2 JOHN, B. Jan. 1, 1787. D. Aug. 11, 1854 M. JANE MAC NEIL (in 1807). B. Mar. 30, 1791, D. Jan. 30, 1868. John, son of Nicholas, Jr., was born in Bedford Co., Pa. His wife Jane was the daughter of William MacNeil and his wife Elizabeth Edgar (daughter of William Edgar). Family tradition has it that Jane's family opposed her marrying John. Jane had her own fine black horse. One day she went out riding "down by the old mill", met John, eloped and married him. They first settled in Erie Co., Pa. where John's father had located, then in about 1820 moved to a farm near Mt. Vernon, Knox Co., O. where John's Uncle George lived. In 1837 John was granted 160 acres of land near Van Wert, O. which was later owned by his son William and his heirs until about 1918. John and Jane Lybarger are buried in Bird Cemetery near Bangs, O.

Children:

1. Eliza, March 23, 1810.
2. William, March 1, 1815.

B. I - 3 ANNA MARY (or MARY ANN), B. Oct. 28, 1788, D. M. WILLIAM GUTHRIE in 1814.

B. I - 4 HENRY, B. Sept. 24, 1793, M. NANCY _____ B. Oct. 17, 1794, D. Apr. 23, 1863.

B. I - 5 ANDREW, B. Dec. 3, 1795.

B. I - 6 ERNEST, B. Dec. 5, 1797.

B. I - 7 CATHERINE (or CAROLINE) B. D. M. JOSEPH EAGLEY in 1841. Their children were Frank and James Eagley. It is likely that they may be buried in the Eagley plot in the cemetery at East Springfield, Erie Co., Pa.

B. I - 8 CORNELIUS, B. May 3, 1801, M. NANCY EAGLEY.

B. I - 9 RACHEL, M. _____SOPPER (or SAPPER)

Children of Henry Lybarger, Sr. (B.II)

Descendants of Henry Lybarger, Sr. are numerous. Most of his children settled in Knox County, O. "History of Knox Co.,O." (Hill, 1881) has this to say concerning same of them (at pages 472, 4, 723):

"The Lybargers, although not the first settlers, have long been identified with the history and interests of Harrison (Township). George, Adam, Henry, and Andrew . . . emigrated from Bedford Co., Pa., to Knox Co. in the fall of 1819. They rented a house in Mt. Vernon during the winter of 1819-20. The following spring they moved to Harrison, where they purchased a large tract of land in the northwest part of the township, much of which was Owl Creek bottom land and very productive . . . . The Lybargers were frugal farmers, very zealous Lutherans, and were the prime movers in the organization of Mt. Zion Evangelical Lutheran Church of this township. George died in about 1876, Adam in 1872. All of the four brothers are dead. Their descendants are still (1881) numerous here."[1] The George noted above was not a brother but a cousin.

"Mt. Zion Evan. Lutheran Church was organized in 1835 by Rev. H. W. Lauer. The first elders were: Henry Lybarger, and Samuel Stough; deacons, Adam and Jesse Lybarger; trustees, George and Peter Lybarger. Among the first members of the church were . . . Henry, Andrew, Peter, George, Jesse, Anthony, Michael and Frederick Lybarger."

B. II - 1 DANIEL, B. 1786. D. Feb. 3, 1869. M. ESTHER, B._____. D._____. Henry was born in Bedford Co., Pa., in 1786. His wife's name was Esther. Their names appear on the Lutheran Church record as communicants in 1807. Likewise a record of their children is found there. In 1830 Daniel moved his family to Richland Co., O., where he bought a quarter section near Plymouth or Shiloh. He is buried at Gauges, O.

CHAPTER FIVE

The writing of a family history is a hard task at best, and its difficulty increases as the family grows and becomes scattered. At this point I have decided to follow a different plan of presentation in the interest of economy of space. Hereafter members of the various branches of the family will be grouped together and each succeeding generation will be recorded within its group, instead of being placed together by generation as in previous chapters.
